Being Bombarded by Stimuli

Mushiba: Some days I feel as if I am being bombarded by stimuli that is trying to gain my attention. I used to be concerned that I might not be responding to the right stimuli, and therefore, not learning my lessons. However, I now believe that the bombardment itself is an ongoing lesson — which stimuli will I respond to for lesson learning, knowing at the same time, that whatever stimuli I do select will be part of my lesson learning.

Waith said in his class, Call to Be of Service:

Waith: "You are not expected to respond to everything that is presented to you ~ it would be a bombardment beyond your capabilities. So, you are selective in what you respond to."

The Universe bombards us with stimuli so that every energy form has choices we are not limited to only one or two selections. Thus, one person may respond to hunger in the world, another to an Earth catastrophe, another to a friend's sadness, another to only Self's needs. Because each of us selects stimuli different from another, I think that more variety is expressed and greater strength in The One is achieved and, we simply have more joy and fun!
