

Here is the Issue

Mushiba: I believe there is nothing more difficult than facing Self, and thus, the issues that need to be learned by Self. However, I think the result of facing my issues has brought me a sense of freedom.

During his class, Guidelines for Growth, Waith counseled:

Waith: “Many people talk about how they want to face Self. However, they do not face Self because it requires actually confronting Self ~ seeing right in front of you and saying ~ Here it is, here is my issue.”

My belief ~ taken from my own experiences ~ is that as I have successfully faced Self, the greater has been my next challenge. However, each new challenge has made me stronger and assured within Self. As a result, I have learned greater percentages of the issue of Respect of Self ~ and, I then Love Self more, which enables me to Respect and Love Others to a greater degree.

For me saying, Here is the Issue, has been well worth the continual challenges and has presented me with wonderful opportunities and adventures. So, Let The Games Continue!
