

We Have The Information We Need

Mushiba: We are bombarded daily by information through many different media that, at times, can be overwhelming ~ unless we learn to understand the purpose of so much information. Since we live in an accelerated and exaggerated time, the flow of information also takes on that behavior. We are not expected to absorb all of it ~ indeed, only a small percentage is meant for us at any given point.

Waith speaks often about this barrage of information ~ including his own after over thirty years of speaking and thousands of pages of transcripts ~ and, that we only need to pay attention to that which we truly need. He highlighted this point as he made reference to our journey on the earth plane training ground:

Waith: “All the information that we give relates only to the earth plane sojourn ~ there is other information that relates to other training grounds. However, it is only necessary for you to have and understand the information relating to the earth plane. That is where you find your journey and where you need to have the information that relates to your specific journey now. When you are on other training grounds, other appropriate information is given in similar types of gatherings.”

Part of our journey, I believe, involves evaluating all the information of which we are aware and determining what is necessary for our path. And while it might be truly interesting to know what it is really like on The Candy Planet that Waith has mentioned, for most of us it is simply superfluous and distracting information ~ even though some may beg to disagree on this particular point.