

Confusing Honesty With Truth

Mushiba: Honesty can be defined as “marked by integrity” and truth, “the real state of things.” While the dictionary also defines each term with the other, according to Waith, honesty and truth are not the same and are often confused:

Waith: “Honesty is related directing to truth. However, many confuse honesty with truth. To be truthful means that you are honest ~ however, if you are honest, you are not necessarily truthful. To understand this difference, truth is as an entity defines truth for Self.”

“There is a Universal Truth and as you gain in your own awarenesses, you seek the higher truth and you eventually discover the Universal Truth. If you are working toward the achievement of Universal Truth and defining what that Universal Truth is, then you would define honesty in different ways, for your honesty relates directly to the way in which you see truth.”

“The only way you can ultimately grow is by going within Self because the answers that are within Self are your own truth, as you understand it at that particular time. You must not attempt to go by another’s truth. Seek your own answers and find your own truth and respond in that way, even if it means that the next day you have a different truth. This is as it needs to be ~ follow your truth.”

Question to Ponder: Can people not have honesty about their truth? And, if so, in what ways might that manifest? As my ending thought: Focus on Lightheartedness and the Spreading of Light!
