Teaching And Learning, From Your Pets

When our pets are involved in incidents, is that primarily for their learning, for our learning, or for both of us, is there teaching and learning involved?

There is, generally speaking, teaching and learning involved in any situation that occurs, regardless of the level of energy form involved. In this case, The Animal Kingdom with that of The Human Kingdom would only be an indicator that, depending of course on the situation and the path involved, whether the animal was teaching and/or learning, coinciding with the related energy form that it was involved with. In your particular case there was a learning mode for both you and the animal.

Be Careful Of Judging One Of The Crystal Kingdom

I recently gave a crystal to a friend. She was sleeping with it and experienced a very active bout of sleepwalking. In being cautious, I told her she should put it on the nightstand for a few nights. Do you have any advice for that? Is it caused by or should I be concerned with giving her this advice?

You must be very careful about judgements. This is an issue of judgement that we, of course, have placed on the record many times where one entity judges in varying degrees another entity. The crystal is being judged as being the, shall we say, culprit in a situation. There is an automatic response here saying that it is the crystal that is creating the behavior of this entity. This is an extreme form of judgement.

Crystals, as we have said before, are energy forms that need to have their own type of respect, just as any of you would be careful about judging another entity of The Human Kingdom. This brings to light judgement from The Crystal Kingdom. Crystals are too often accused, many times, of certain things that they have not in fact had a part in, and in this particular situation, this crystal is being unjustly accused. And that is what it is, an accusation. And the entity of The Human Kingdom must take responsibility for actions that it has brought about from its own spirit and not with the crystal.

A Discussion Of Taking On Another's Ailments And The Abuse Of Power

How would we know if we have taken an ailment or a physical discomfort from someone, or if it is just our own?

This is a rather difficult situation unless you are becoming very attuned to your Higher Self to know when you have taken on another's ailment at a conscious level. This can be achieved in your own understandings through the meditative state where your Higher Self will simply tell you that you have taken on an ailment.

There are far greater issues, of course, involved here, for we would be looking at whether this was a voluntary assimilation of the ailment, or an involuntary assimilation of the ailment, for recall that any imposition upon another is not of the good and that if you take on an ailment from another, and they have not agreed to that, then you impose upon them, and in fact, could stall somewhat their own workings through a particular issue. And thus, it becomes critical that you are able to look to the Higher Self through meditation, the asking of the guides, if you are not able to tune in exactly as you would want to the Higher Self, to look for answers from your guides. There is no, shall we say, formula at earth plane that you could plug into and say that based upon this, or this I have taken on an ailment, rather than my own.

If it is all done at spirit level, and not at the conscious level, is there still a chance of imposing?

Oh, indeed! Indeed! Remember that at spirit level all is not as it needs to be. It is not ideal, for though you work on lessons at spirit, and there can be tremendous imposition at spirit level. In fact, it is easier to impose at spirit level than it is at the physical level. Understand that, that just because you are at spirit does not mean that you are perfect, for you would be back in The Universal Consciousness if that were the case.

If you do come to that understanding that you took it on as imposing upon the other and took on their ailment, how would you be able to give it back to them then?

You must give it back immediately. And this is the trick! This is the trick, for it is not as easy to give it back once you have taken it, and this is getting into the areas in which we have discussed the abuse of power. And understand that ~ that it takes a fairly advanced energy form to be able to take on the ailment of another, be it at physical or spiritual, and as the abilities increase, the powers become potentially dangerous, and this is where much of the lessons come in in the use of the power that an entity begins to gain as they attune themselves to higher levels.

You must in your meditation seek to rid yourself of any desire to impose, for imposing is an abuse of power. And one of the difficulties, once there has been an abuse of power, is to lessen that inclination. Therefore, when you realize at conscious level that you have forcefully taken something from another entity, it becomes more difficult to let go of that, and a whole series of other lessons come into play, so that you then have a number of lessons being worked out, abusive power, the fact that you imposed, that you took an ailment from another, many, many issues come into play. It is not simple, of course.

Waith Advises That Kathy Duffey And Her Shop Herbarium in Chicopee Is Of The Light

I have been seeking some nutritional advice from a woman in Chicopee, just to see your opinion of her ways. Her name is Kathy Duffey. She has a shop called the Herbarium, I believe, or something like that, in Chicopee Center.

She is of the Light, one who has a great deal of experience in other manifestations where what she does, in this manifestation, has contributed to a very, very innate sensitivity to entities who have taken on accelerated growth in this manifestation. And she is able to, as we would say, plug into the energy in which she finds herself communicating. She would be one who could give very beneficial information to any of those who would read the transcripts of this session.

Farena Comes In With Greetings

My son is too shy to ask. Could Farena come in?

Farena: Hello, hello! It has been such a long time since I have been in to speak with all of you! I have had other things on the agenda to do. It has been a rather fun time. And with Mushiba's vibration changing now ~ so, it makes it so much easier to come in. We greet the entity who we have been working with now from many, many lifetimes, and I send you an energy at Soul Level you will recognize. We will speak at another time when you are ready, privately, without all the people here.

Farena, have you spent a lot of time with my daughter lately?

Farena: I have been with her.

Farena, have you spent some time with a friend of mine?

Yes-s-s, I have. I have been a busy little entity. ☺

Farena, I have a little bronze hand in my garden. Is that from you? ☺

Yes.

This is my name, Jimmy. (A child is speaking)

Farena: Yes, bright light. We are aware of your presence.

I am taking good care of my stuff.

Farena: I know you are. And we bring to you very soon from The Universe something very special from The Mineral Kingdom. You will watch for it. It will be your friend.

Waith: Well. I sometimes can be upstaged by the vibration of Farena, which is understandable, of course.

Can A Healer Heal Someone That They Have Not Been Able To Heal Within Themselves?

In the case of healing, when I, as a healer, work with someone, is it possible for me to assist someone in healing something that I have not healed within myself, or is that just something that we, as healers, can only assist so far as oneself is progressed?

You must understand that the ability known as healing, again, is only done by Self, truly, and that others would be facilitators. Now, a facilitator does not, therefore, need to have undergone the actual experience or to have, as you would say, be at a certain level of healing, for if that were the case then most entities would only then be able to assist other entities who were at their own level. And as those who would be facilitators know, varying levels of advancement would be coming into their environment, nonetheless having issues of healing. And thus, in the physical incarnation, the healer is simply a facilitator and able to direct and to guide the entity who wants the healing to understand what they need to heal and what their issues are. You will not be doing it for them.

This must be understood very, very clearly that those who are referred to as healers are only facilitators, they are not actually healing. Only Self can truly heal. There may be abilities where a physical change occurs rather dramatically, and this is the result of the facilitator, the healer, having rather advanced abilities and at the same time working at spirit level with the healee, you see. We have given much information on this subject and there is much more to give, but for those of you, and especially, my love, in your situation, you must not feel inadequate, that you are much like a lightning rod as envisioned on the plane where you are a conductor of energy from one source to another, so you are able to assist in that way.

Do Guides Seek Us, Or Do We Seek Them, Or Have They Always Been There?

We will work backwards with the questions. They have not always been there. They come and go depending upon their own mission and the mission that you have at a particular time frame. You seek out the guides and the guides are assigned to entities. There is a mutual, very often mutual, alignment. There may be times when guides are assigned to you without your understanding, for they have been given special reasons for helping you that you are not aware of even at spirit.

The more advanced an energy form becomes, the more alignment there is in the selection of guides. This is done strictly at spirit. All guide assignments must be approved by the hierarchy, and there is one in The Universe, you see. You simply cannot go out and pick an energy form, and you and it agree that you will be a guide, or it will be a guide, for those who serve as guides are specially trained and have special obligations and responsibilities. We have what we refer to as Guide School, and there are many levels of Guide School.

An entity will receive a guide based upon the energy's mission and what it hopes to accomplish in a particular manifestation. What we have ~ we have placed this, by the way, in the transcripts. There is a great deal of discussion about guides which you may look to the index to find information for you. What we have, however, not really addressed, and will at some other time, is guides at spirit level where a spirit has a guide also, even at spirit level, not just at the physical level, are there guides, but in many, many connections. That is for another time.
